AAEE PROFESSIONAL LEARNING SERIES

CLIMATE ACTION EDUCATION

A three-part online professional learning series for educators

ONLINE · 3 SESSIONS
16 | 23 | 30 Nov
Mondays

EACH SESSION
7 - 8.30pm AEDT

CERIFICATE
12 Hours PL

Climate change education is no longer just about helping learners understand climate science, it's also about navigating questions of agency, action, uncertainty, justice and what meaningful climate action can look like in their own communities.

This Professional Learning Series provides space to examine the ideas and approaches behind effective climate action education, and consider how they translate into your own teaching practice. Between sessions, you will have opportunities to consider your own practice and test ideas in your educational context.

THE THREE SESSIONS

1 16 NOVEMBER
Defining Climate Action Education
Key terms, research-informed outcomes and your own applied definitions.

2 23 NOVEMBER
Doing Climate Action Education
Tools and pedagogies from the ARC-funded Enacting Climate Change Education project, including system mapping.

3 30 NOVEMBER
Developing Teacher and Learner Agency
What agency means, how to foster it, and goals for action.

YOU'LL LEAVE WITH

- Fresh approaches to action, agency and transformation
- Frameworks for your own setting
- A network of like-minded educators
- A 12-hour Certificate of Completion

WHO SHOULD ATTEND

All educators. Pre-service teachers and leaders welcome.
No specialist knowledge needed.

FACILITATOR

Associate Professor Peta White

Peta White is an Associate Professor in Science and Environmental Education at Deakin University. She is the Co-director of the Regenerating Futures Faculty Research Group and the Editor-In-Chief of the Australian Journal of Environmental Education.
